EASY SADDLES.
A word to those who are fond of easy riding.
The complaint against hard and uneasy saddles, which is for the most part a just and general one, and is really a great grievance to those who have much riding to do, has caused me to turn my mind particularly to that subject, with a view if possible to remedy the evil.—I can with confidence assure the public that I have accomplished it.—I have projected a plan which is by means of strong and well ten-sured saddle seats, so constructed as to support the saddle seat & give much greater ease to both rider & horse, than saddles made in the common way or any other that I have ever seen, can possibly do. The plan is entirely different from the English elastic saddles with spring bars of steel, whalebone, &c. and also from those with wire springs, and I conceive much superior to either, as the elasticity is greater, and the tree not being put out of its original form,
will not be subject to hurting horses on journeys, which is complained of in these saddles with spring bars. A number of gentlemen in this town and its vicinity, have those saddles now in use, and but one sentiment I believe exists among them in favour of their superiority.—The invention is equally as applicable to ladies saddles as to gentlemen's. Any person desirous of purchasing those easy saddles, is at liberty first to make trial of one and judge of their use for themselves. In point of durability I will warrant them equal to any other saddles, and superior to most.
I have taken the necessary steps to secure a patent for this invention, and expect that no gentleman saddler will attempt to avail himself of my plan.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO THE LADIES.
THE Lexington Manufacturing Company are desirous of obtaining a quantity of fine bleached Linen and Cotton RAGS, which are necessary to enable them to manufacture the important article of fine Paper, of which so much is annually imported, and might be avoided if the patronage and economy of the ladies of Kentucky, would induce them to adopt the customs of the ladies in the eastern states, viz.
to keep a Rag Bag, which is usually hung up in a place convenient for the purpose, and in which are deposited the Rags that almost daily appear in every large family.—At the end of the year your rag bags thus attended, will produce you a liberal sum for pin-money, and greatly aid the important manufactures of your state.
Six Cents in money will be paid for fine bleached Linen or Cotton Rags; and a price in proportion for coarser quality, or for tow made from flax or hemp.

BONAPARTE.

Interesting Documents relative to the manner in which Bonaparte is to be treated.

Letter from Earl Bathurst, Secretary of State, to the Lords of the Admiralty.

"DOWING STREET, July 30.

"Mr. Lords—I wish your Lordships to have the goodness to communicate to Rear Admiral Sir George Cockburn, a copy of the following Memorial, which is to serve him by way of instruction, to direct his conduct while general Bonaparte remain under his care. The Prince Regent, in confiding to English officers a mission of such importance, feels that it is unnecessary to express to them his earnest desire that no greater personal restraint may be employed than what shall be found necessary faithfully to perform the duties, of which the Admiral, as well as the Governor of St. Helena, must never lose sight, namely, the perfectly secure detention of the person of general Bonaparte. Every thing which, without opposing the grand object, can be granted as an indulgence will, his Royal Highness is convinced, be allowed the general. The Prince Regent depends further on the well known real and resolute character of Sir George Cockburn, that he will not suffer himself to be misled, impudently to deviate from the performance of his duty.

"BATHURST."

MEMORIAL.

When general Bonaparte leaves the Beller-ophon to go on board the Northumberland, it will be the proper moment for Admiral Cockburn to have the effects examined which general Bonaparte may have brought with him.

The Admiral will allow all the baggage, wine and provisions, which the general may have brought with him, to be taken on board the Northumberland. Among the baggage his table service is to be understood as included, unless it be so considerable as to seem rather an article to be converted into ready money than real use.

His money, his diamonds, and his saleable effects, (consequently bills of exchange also) of whatever kind they may be, must be delivered up. The Admiral will declare to the general that the British government by no means intends to confiscate his property, but merely to take upon itself the administration of his effects to hinder him from using them as a means to promote his flight.

The examination shall be made in the presence of a person named by Bonaparte; the inventory of the effects to be retained shall be signed by this person as well as by the Rear-Admiral, or by the person whom he shall appoint to draw up the inventory.

The interest or principal (according as his property is more or less considerable) shall be applied to his support, and in this respect the principal arrangements to be left to him.

For this reason he can from time to time signify his wishes to the Admiral till the arrival of the new Governor of St. Helena and afterwards to the latter; and if an objection is to be made to his proposal, the Admiral or the Governor can give the necessary orders, and the disbursement will be paid by bills on his Majesty's Treasury.

In case of death, he can dispose of his property by a last will, and be assured that the contents of his testament shall be faithfully executed.

As an attempt might be made to make a part of his property pass for the property of the persons of his suite, it must be signified, that the property of his attendants is subject to the same regulations.

The disposal of the troops left to guard him must be left to the Governor.

The latter, however, has received a notice,
in the case which will be hereafter mentioned,
to act according to the desire of the Admiral.

The general must constantly be attended by an officer appointed by the Admiral, or if the case occurs, by the Governor. If the general is allowed to go out of the bounds where the centinels

ures for sending immediately to England, the Cape of Good Hope, or the East Indies, such officers, or other persons, in the military corps of St. Helena, as the Admiral, either because they are foreigners, or on account of their character or disposition, shall think it advisable to dismiss from the military service in St. Helena.

If there are strangers in the island whose residence in the country shall seem to be with a view of being instrumental to the flight of general Bonaparte, he must take measures to remove them. The whole coast of the island, and all ships and boats that visit it, are placed under the surveillance of the Admiral. He fixes the places which the boats may visit, and the government will send a sufficient guard to the points where the Admiral shall consider this precaution as necessary.

The Admiral will adopt the most vigorous measures to watch over the arrival and departure of every ship, and to prevent all communication with the coast except such as he shall allow.

Orders will be issued to prevent, after a certain necessary interval, any foreign or mercantile vessels to go in future to St. Helena.

If the general should be seized with serious illness, the Admiral and the Governor will each name a physician who enjoys their confidence, in order to attend the general in common with his own physicians: they will give their strict orders to give in every day a report on the state of his health. In case of his death, the Admiral will give orders to convey his body to England.

Given at the War-Office, July 30, 1815.

LONDON, Sept. 12.

We have advices from Holland, which state, that the 7th Prussian corps, with a large train of artillery, is now on its march into France, by Dinant; to be employed in the sieges of Thionville, Longwy, Montmedy, Givet and Charlemont. The Prussians already occupy Maubeuge, Avesnes, Landreies, Philippeville, Rorway and Marienbourg: which they have placed in the best state of defence.

Sept. 20.

The mighty Emperor of Morocco has, it seems, declared war against the Emperor of Russia and the kings of Prussia and Naples. How long are these Barbarians to insult united Europe?

LONDON, Sept. 4.

"I this moment learn by letters from Malaga, that the Bey of Tripoli has declared war against the Danes, and actually taken some of their vessels."

Sept. 23.

We have had a communication from a gentleman who has just arrived from the north eastern frontier of France, and he states, that great complaint is made of the abuse of some members of the alliance, in consequence of the power they have acquired. He affirms, that he met about 40,000 Prussians, without arms, and without regimental clothing, who were proceeding to the interior of France, to supply themselves with both. He understood that there was another column also of 40,000 men from Prussia, advancing in the same state, and for the same purpose.

"Orders to a prodigious extent are now executing at Leeds, and in the neighborhood, to provide clothing for the Prussians in France. Our government has no part in it, and the whole is transacted by private hands."

TABLES, Sept. 1.

A decree of his majesty, granting a premium and the exemption from all house duties, to such persons as shall be introduced into the ports of Naples, from foreign countries, before the end of February, 1816.

If we are to credit the news from Paris, arrived to-day by the Holland mail, there have assembled an army of 200,000 men, and the Russian general Wittgenstein has received orders to go immediately with his army to the Russian frontiers on the side of Turkey. Austria has likewise taken precautionary measures on her eastern frontiers.

Letters from Paris announce that serious differences have arisen between the courts of Madrid and Lisbon, and it is supposed that England will not meddle in this quarrel. At all events, England will not interest herself in favor of the last of these two powers, before knowing the answer that the prince regent of Brazil shall make to marshal Beresford, relative to the conduct of that regency, who refused the assistance of Portuguese troops against Bonaparte.

DISTURBANCES IN IRELAND.

LIMERICK, September 12.

It is with regret we state that scarcely a day passes without accounts reaching our office from different parts of this country, of atrocities committed by armed bands of nightly marauders. On Saturday night last, they attacked two houses in the centre of the town of Billingsly; a man of the name of Kennedy, a lock-smith, residing in one of them; they forcibly carried off a blunderbuss he had to repair, and because he did not instantly give it up, they flogged him unmercifully; the other house, belonging to Thomas Gorman, they broke into and robbed of a musket. From the quantity of arms those miscreants have obtained possession of by plunder, their increasing daring, and countless numbers, the gentlemen who have authorized us to make the above statement, has no doubt on his mind, if the magistrates do not promptly obtain military aid, rebellion will soon be so organized as to burst forth in deeds of massacre and blood.

In consequence of the recent murder committed near Charleville, as stated in our last, and other outrages in that neighborhood, the magistrates have requested a military force to assist them in their exertions to preserve the peace, and a detachment of the fifth battalion of the 60th regiment, has been ordered there from Voughal.

On Tuesday night, the dispensary house of Ballogh, near Dundrum demesne, county of Tipperary, was levelled to the ground. It was intended to station a party of soldiers there, and this is supposed to be the reason of the ruffians for having levelled it.

A cow and horse, the property of Mr. Brew, of Kiltrush, were maliciously shot near that town on Tuesday night; five ricks of turf were consumed by incendiaries.

Two of the men who were wounded on Tuesday, at the fair of O'Brien's bridge (as stated in our last) have died in consequence; and another with a desperate wound in the back, is received into a county hospital.

The following is one of the notes served upon the protestant clergymen, in different parts of the county of Tipperary, by "the redoubtable champions of poor man's harvest;" or, in language better understood, by the ruffian gangs of murderers and spoilers, whose existence disgraces the Irish name and nation:

"You are to take notice, that any protector, collecting tithes in this parish, either by day or by night, or any person in company with them, showing them any lot of ground, will be sure to meet the same fate as the protector himself—two shillings to be allowed per acre, for three or four hundred acres. (Signed) Captain KILL PROCTOR. 26th August, 1815."

On Tuesday se'night, at 4 o'clock in the morning, a number of fellows, after a night's excursion went to the servants lodge of John Veroker, Esq. at Wightfield, in the liberties of this city, and after attempting to break in the dwelling, demanded fire arms, which, on Mr. Veroker's hearing, he rushed out, and, in concert with a faithful neighbor, dashed after the ruffians, and succeeded in apprehending two of them, one of whom was unfortunately rescued on the new road, he is however known; the other fellow, named John Connor, a farmer of Pass, was brought into jail; he had a white shirt over his clothes, was armed with a musket, and appeared to be the leader of the delinquent party; in his possession was found some ball, and in Tidney's house, which the party broke into the same night, a written document was left which they forgot, of which the following is a copy:—

"What are you? I am a man. How can you prove yourself a man? By being born a true member of the church of Christ. Which is the greatest river you ever met? Were you baptised? Yes. What name did you get? Truth and Liberty. What do you mean by liberty? I mean the sons of liberty, the north star. How long are you from the centre of Ireland? It lies in the centre of my heart. Have you any proof for that? Yes, God prospers the true United Boys long. What are you up to? To the rights of my country. Who keeps your rights from you? My former brothers. How comes it that we are equal to the builders of Babel? We do not understand each other. How long are you in the world? Since my baptism. What arms of protection do you carry? I carry the cross as a gift from God, under my heart. What is your age? My age is my name, and my name is my number. What is your number? B. What is your chief contention? ETERNITY, NOT CEASELESS MORTALITY. What is that in English? Death to a traitor, or a traitor to death. Where do you keep your secrets? In a bone box in my left side. How high are you? Three steps towards Paradise. Which are they? F. H. C. They are seven clouds over us; I hope heavy showers will bring them down. You are going one side on your shoes? It is no matter to you whether I stand upright. Do you stand so? No. Why so? There is a heavy yoke over us since the battle of the Boyne."

The fair of O'Brien's Bridge, on Thursday, was a scene of dreadful riot. At ten o'clock a general engagement between two clans commenced; each party fought desperately, with guns, pistols, and blunderbusses, and though none of the persons that were engaged were actually killed on the spot, yet the following were wounded, some of whom are pronounced to be in imminent danger:—

Quilligan, a farmer, received a hot shot through the thigh; it lacerated, dangerously wounded in the leg and thigh; Mrs. Ryan, a musket-shot through her thigh; O'Brien, a shot in the side; Red Lynch, a shot in the leg; and John Quilligan, stabbed in different parts of the body.

A party of infantry and cavalry, with major general Barry, left this at two o'clock for O'Brien's Bridge, but we regret the battle was over before the troops reached the field to dispossess the sanguinary combatants of their fire arms.

On Wednesday night a large party of armed desperadoes attacked the house of Clonane, at Lisacrol, near Charleville, in search of fire arms. Mr. Clonane and his sons made a resolute resistance, but having lighted a candle, the assailants outside took deliberate aim with a loaded musket at Mr. Clonane sen. which unfortunately took effect, and mortally wounded him.

On Monday night a very large party, mounted and armed, traversed the country between Marfield and Baro, compelled the farmers to swear that they would pay no tithes but in kind, or at the rate of 2s. per acre. They posted up a written notice to this effect on the turnpike gate, at Marfield, threatening with vengeance any person who should tear it down.

Monday night another party traversed the neighborhood of Killesly, beyond Fethard, to the westward of Slievenamain Mountain, and swore numerous farmers to the above import.

From New Inn to Snir Castle, various troops of midnight legislators drove through the country one night on a similar errand; on which night a house was burnt by them to the ground, on the road from Cashel to the New Inn, scarcely a mile from the city.

On Monday night information having been received by Mr. Taylor, of Neen a magistrate, that an illegal meeting was to be held at a certain place in this neighborhood, he took a party of the Wexford regiment with him, from the barracks of Ballynure, and went in pursuit of them. As they were on their way, they were fired on by a party of wretches from behind the covers on the road side, by which a sergeant was severely wounded, and his recovery is very doubtful. It is even said he has since died, but we truly hope not. The military party fired after and pursued the ruffians, but we know not with what effect, as, it seems, they dispersed in the bogs immediately after the perpetration of the crime.

On Sunday afternoon, Edmund Dwyer, a proctor of the rev. Mr. Armstrong, was shot dead near Clonoulty, by a party of assassins. The particulars we have not heard.

ENNIS, September 9.

Mr. Molony Kiltannan, having some time in the last month, sent the man who receives his rent to the lands of Beagha, in Burren, to desire that his tenants would pay him half a years rent out of five years due to him, and the man having driven a few head of cattle they were rescued from him. Mr. Molony, in order to try whether his presence would produce the same treatment, went last Thursday, with five men armed, disarmed about one hundred sheep and some horned cattle, which were driven into a yard near his lodge. In some time he thought it prudent to send the stock to pound, and was proceeding with his men for that purpose, when they were attacked by above 300 persons, men and women, who set up a shout, and commenced to throw from slings and otherwise, stones of three or four pounds weight. Mr. Molony in vain remonstrated with them, and then in his own defence was obliged to fire, making use of small shot in hopes to intimidate them, but it served only to redouble their fury.

Mr. Molony, wishing to bring off his men, attempted to charge those on the road with his cavalry sword, but the showers of stones were so numerous and well directed, that his horse being often struck, and frightened at the shouts of the assailants, became quite unmanageable, and Mr. M. was obliged to relinquish the stock, not however until he had collected his men, one of whom was tumbled into the beach of the sea, where he would have been murdered, were it not for Mr. McDermott, nephew to the parish priest, who laudably exerted himself for his protection. Mr. Molony was obliged to retire to his lodge, and remained housed with his men a considerable time, while the cattle were driven off in different directions.—Mr. Molony received a wound in his leg, and two blows of stones on his thighs, one of which, (but for the steel scabbard of his sword) would have been broken, and before he retreated, one of his men was so wounded in the groin and chest, as to be taken home in a state of uncertainty as to his recovery.

DUBLIN, Oct. 4.

Meeting of Magistrates at Limerick.

With dismay and sorrow, we are compelled to state that, the whole of the County of Limerick, and even the Liberties of the City have been declared by a large and unanimous meeting of the Magistrates, to be in a state of disturbance, and a Memorial has been accordingly transmitted to Government. The meeting was held on Tuesday, at the County Court House, to take into consideration the state of the County. The Hon. Mr. Quin was called to the chair, when the Magistrates, residing in every Barony, were examined separatim, as to the informations they had taken of the state of their respective Baronies, and it was then unanimously resolved, that a Memorial should be sent to the Lord Lieutenant, praying his Excellency and the Privy Council to proclaim the County. The City Magistrates concurring in praying also, that the Liberties of the City except that part which was attached to, and formed a continuation of the City, should also be included in the Proclamation.

INSURRECTION IN SPAIN.

From the London Courier of October 2d.

The mail from Corunna has brought very important intelligence, nothing less than accounts of an insurrection against the existing government of Spain, in consequence of its SUPPOSED oppression.—General Porlier, who distinguished himself so much in the patriotic war, under the name of the Marquisito, assembled a body of troops on the 18th ult. at Santa Lucia, entered the town of Corunna, arrested the principal authorities, and, having obtained quiet possession of the town, issued a Proclamation, stating the miseries which had been heaped on Spain by the councils which have prevailed since King Ferdinand's return, and asserting that all foreign powers, from the very beginning, had strongly disapproved of the King's measures. He proceeds to make the military very flattering offers in the name of the provinces, which he says will regulate themselves by the internal Junta, until the convocation of the Cortes, will determine the future system of government. Further accounts this morning say the adjoining Provinces are ready to join that of Galicia, and that the next day will probably bring intelligence of the cause being general throughout Spain. Corunna was illuminated when the packet, which arrived at Falmouth with the mail, left that place; and it seems that the cause of Porlier is popular.—This important event gives much interest to the reports respecting the state of Spain. The French Papers say, that many old castles have been fitted up as prisons, and that upwards of fifty thousand persons have been thrown into confinement for their political opinions, among whom are many of the most brave defenders of the country in the late struggle with France. King Ferdinand is said to have sent out Franciscan Friars as Missionaries to lecture the people against the liberal, the modern opinions on politics; lectures which have not been well received, particularly at Madrid.

Despatches have been received in this country from Gen. Porlier. We understand they are couched in very sanguine terms, and express confident hopes of success. They are addressed to the friends of General Porlier, resident in England.

Corunna, Sept. 19.—A very unexpected event has just taken place here. General Porlier, who had been confined here by the King's orders, in the castle of St. Antonio ever since August, 1814, but who obtained permission last month to visit the bath of Antrigo on account of his health, last night assembled the troops quartered in Santa Lucia, city without the gates, and entered this city at one o'clock this morning; where he arrested the captain General of the Province, the Governor of this City, and two or three other persons; by three all was quiet, and as perfect tranquility prevails as if nothing had happened. The following is the General's Proclamation:

PROCLAMATION.

Addressed by General Don Juan Diaz Porlier, to the Soldiers of the Army of the Kingdom of Galicia.

Soldiers!—The happy and desired day is arrived, in which, by our heroic and glorious resolution, we begin to break the chains of the most fatal slavery that has ever been known. It would be useless for me to exert myself to convince you what had been the conduct of King Ferdinand since his restoration to the throne of Spain; that throne which cost the nation so many lives, so much blood, and such sacrifices to deliver it from the influence of a tyrant. Nobody is ignorant that the King, surrounded by avaricious counsellors, has consented to, and executed a proscription so atrocious, that even the irrational have trembled at it; the most illustrious and deserving men have been the first victims of it; delivered by this means from those who had preferred the general good to their own interest, they opened the flood gates of despotism, and the nation was in a moment inundated with the furious torrent.

Such, Soldiers, is the mass of evils and misfortunes that we have suffered! Misery, contempt, disgrace have been the recompense they have given us; the dissolution of the laws, punishments, contributions, duties, (los senorios, los purtias;) and finally the depression and discouragement of agriculture and commerce, have been the acknowledgment that has been made for the services of the people. I will not speak to you of other vicious and infamous proceedings which have been committed with impunity, and audacity, having even gone so far as to endeavour to sanctify them as precepts of our holy religion. To come out of a situation so desperate and which scandalizes all Europe, we need but be resolved; we, if the case is properly considered, are the oppressors of the country, since these armies intended only to combat the enemies of what is good, have been turned for this year past against ourselves, and against our fortunes and interests. Do not fear, in attempting this enterprise, the armies of other powers, since conducted by wise princes, endowed with the most splendid virtues, far from opposing our just cause, it is rather greatly to be hoped, that they will maintain and support it. Yes! we have before our eyes most striking testimonies of this truth, which have made us conceive the most flattering hopes—they have disapproved from the beginning the conduct of King Ferdinand, and with a noble and generous unanimity, they have finished by excluding him from the European alliance, having previously left no means untried to divert him from error, and from the precipice; all has been in vain; in this situation no alternative remains to us but to take to our arms.

Let us remove from his side those wicked counsellors, let us re-establish the Cortes; and let them determine the system which is to govern us; and meantime considering the nation as abandoned and destitute, the provinces, in imitation of this most noble kingdom of Galicia, will appoint their internal juntas to govern them till the convocation of the Cortes. Henceforth the valiant soldiers, the men of talent, & of real merit, shall meet with a solid recompense: arts, agriculture, and commerce shall resume their ancient splendor; the national wealth shall resume the same channels which formerly nourished it; the soldiers and others employed by the public, shall be punctually paid, the scale of justice shall return to that equilibrium of force, which is the foundation of the tranquility of the state. All this, soldiers, is offered you as a reward by the change of the present system; to obtain it, unite your forces with mine, and have confidence in your chiefs: doubt not but that the other armies will follow you, and that all will be actuated by the same impulse. And if even there should be obstacles and difficulties to overcome, valour makes every thing easy.

FROM FRANCE.

Paris, October 7.

This day, the 7th of October, the King opened the chamber of deputies. His Majesty set out at half past twelve from the castle of the Tuilleries. His retinue marched in the order that had been prescribed.

At his majesty's entrance, the whole assembly arose, crying Vive le Roi!

The assembly was standing and uncovered; the King ordered the peers to be seated, and the chancellor having given, in his majesty's name, permission to the deputies to seat themselves—a profound silence reigned—when his majesty pronounced the following discourse:

Gentlemen—When, last year, I assembled the two houses for the first time, I felicitated myself upon having by an honorable treaty, restored peace to France; she began to taste the fruits of it; all the resources of public prosperity were re-opened—a criminal enterprise, seconded by the most inconceivable defection, came to stop its course. The evils which that ephemeral usurpation have caused to our country, afflict me deeply. I ought, however to declare in this place, that if it had been possible for them to have affected me only, I should bless Providence for them.

The tokens of love that my people gave me, even in the most critical moments, alleviated my individual sufferings; but those of my subjects, of my children, oppress my heart—and in order to put an end to that state of things, more grievous than war itself, I have deemed it my duty to conclude with the powers; who after having overthrown the usurper, at present occupy a great part of our territory, a convention which settles our present and future relations with them. It shall be communicated to you without reserve, so soon as it shall have received its last form. You will know, Gentlemen, and all France will know, the great pain that I must have felt; but the very safety of my kingdom rendered that great determination necessary; and when I took that determination, I felt the duties that it imposed upon me.

I have ordered that this year a considerable portion of my revenue be taken from the treasury of my civil list, and paid into that of the state. My family on being informed of my resolution, offered me a proportionate donation. I order similar retrenchments from the salaries and emoluments of all my servants without exception; I shall always be ready to unite in the sacrifices which imperious circumstances impose on my people. The account of expenses will be delivered to you, and you will know the importance of the economy that I have directed in the departments of my ministers & in all parts of the administration. Happy will it be if those measures can be adequate to the burthen of the state! In every event I rely on the devotion of the nation, and the zeal of the two chambers.

But, gentlemen, other cares more pleasing and not less important, assemble you this day. It is to give more weight to your deliberations, it is in order myself to have the assistance of additional talents, that I have created new peers, and that the number of the deputies of departments has been augmented. I hope that I have succeeded in my choice and the assiduity of the deputies in this difficult conjuncture, is also a proof that they are animated with a future affection for my person and an ardent love for the country.

It is, therefore, with pleasing joy and a perfect confidence that I assemble you about me. Certain that you will never lose sight of the fundamental basis of the felicity of the state, the frank and loyal union of the chambers with the king, and respect for the constitutional charter; that charter which I meditated with care before giving it, to which reflection attaches me every day more and more, which I have sworn to maintain, and which you are all, beginning with my family, about to swear to obey, is, without doubt, like all other human institutions, susceptible of improvement; but none of us ought, to forget, that the danger of innovating, is not far removed from the advantage of meliorating it. Many other important objects offer themselves to your attention; to make religion again flourish, to restore the purity of morals, to establish liberty upon respect to the laws, to render the laws more and more analogous to those great objects, to give stability to public credit, to recompense the army, to heal the wounds that have too much rent the bosom of our country, to secure in short internal tranquility, and thereby to cause France to be respected from without; those are the objects to attain which all our efforts should be directed. I do not flatter myself that so much good can be the work of a single session; but if at the close of the present legislature, it is perceived that we have made approaches to it, we will have reason to be satisfied with ourselves; I shall spare nothing to attain the end; and I rely, gentlemen, upon the most active co-operation on your part.

LONDON, Oct. 5.

On Monday evening Mr. Palmer arrived here from Paris, followed by 663 enormous bales, containing all the effects of Bonaparte, which he had acquired. Among them is the carriage of ceremony, which surpasses any thing of the kind we have ever seen in this country.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 29.

A pamphlet has just been published by Debuscher, at Ghent entitled—"Doubts to be cleared up respecting the son of Napoleon."

FROM CADIZ.

NEW-YORK, Nov. 28.

Captain Allen, of the Midas, informs, that the Dutch squadron was said to be at Leghorn. An Algerine squadron, said to consist of 40 sail (including small vessels) were reported to be at sea—their object not known; supposed to be to meet the Dutch squadron.

Another expedition for South America was spoken of; but would not probably go into effect before January or February. Two regiments were on their way from Madrid for Cadiz, intended as a part of the troops for South America. The communication was open between Madrid and Paris, but the mails were not regular.

Gen. Vellestero had retired from the office of Minister of War.

Extract of a letter from an officer on board the United States brig Enterprise.

"We remained at Malaga about two days and then returned to Gibraltar.—Here we were joined by all Commodore Decatur's squadron, excepting his own ship. Our fleet now consisted of the Independence, Macedonian, United States, Constellation, Congress, Ontario, Erie, Enterprise, Chippewa, Saranac, Boxer, Firefly, Flambear, Torch, Spire, Spark, and Lynx. It was a proud sight for an American to see in a British port just at the close of war with her, which the English thought would have been the destruction of our navy, a squadron of seventeen sail, larger perhaps than our whole navy at the commencement of that war.—At Malaga the Governor waited on commodore Bainbridge on board his ship, an honor which he had never deigned to pay to any Admiral before. On our arrival at Gibraltar the commodore fired a salute of seventeen guns, which was returned with fifteen. Com. Bainbridge immediately sent an officer on shore to inform the Lt. Governor that he had fired 17 guns and expected his salute to be returned gun for gun, and he therefore demanded that two more guns should be immediately fired. The Lt. Governor apologetically and fired the other two guns. Thus you see, my dear —, that an American Commodore can now demand respect from those who formerly would scarcely have noticed him.

"You have no idea of the respect which the American character has gained by our late wars. The Spaniards especially, think we are devils incarnate—as we beat the English who beat the French, who beat them whom nobody ever beat before—and the Algerines whom the devil himself could not beat."

LEXINGTON, MONDAY DECEMBER 11.

THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

In Governor Shelby's Message to the present Legislature, we can promise that our readers will find much to applaud, and little, which will not meet with their entire approbation. The spirit which it breathes, like that of all his former messages, is wholly patriotic, and it is infused into the breasts, as we hope it will be, of our Representatives in the Legislature and in Congress, and is acted on by them, cannot fail to produce the best possible results. What, however, particularly stamps a value upon this message, is its practical and economical recommendations respecting our internal and domestic concerns. The Governor does not content himself with the common admonitions given on similar occasions, of re-organizing and perfecting our militia systems, &c. that we may be at all times prepared for war—knowing full well, by the experience of the past, that more is necessary to promote our happiness, and secure our independence of all foreign nations, he advises us to cultivate, improve, and develop as soon as possible, our internal resources: for these reasons, he proposes for legislative consideration, the encouragement of our infant manufactures—the improvement and extension of our internal navigation and highways—and the patronage of Steam Boats—than which, no subjects can be more interesting to the western people. Our manufacturers have met with no support from those who administer our government, save what the necessities of the Treasury produced—and when Treasury wants again pressed—but this is an odious subject, and we are free to confess, that all our Legislatures have rewarded them with—praise!—As to roads and navigation—all admit they want improvement, though none act to produce that result. Every one confesses our roads to be miserable; and our navigable rivers are, for aught we know, where the Kickapoo found them a thousand years ago. But for want of improvements that might be easily made, and which our internal situation renders more necessary than in almost any other state, our productions, of all kinds, sell for less than their real value, whilst the price of all foreign commodities, is for the same reason, enhanced. Of Steam Boats, we need say little. Their importance has been long appreciated by the public—yet the enterprise of individuals, has done little. It therefore becomes a serious question, whether the public should not become a kind of pioneer, when the result cannot be but useful.

The Governor next recommends a provision for the wives and children of those who have fallen in the late war—an honorable proposal—which could not have escaped one, who like him, had fought with so large a portion of our population, and known their privations and sufferings.

On the subject of salaries to public officers, the Governor is correct as usual. He recommends their increase. The Statute Book of Kentucky, presents to the world, the singular circumstance of all the Judges of the State, possessing the power of deciding, without appeal, on life and death, and in the first instance on all property, with a salary of but $750 each, per year, and many of them doing severe duty for thirty-eight weeks in the year—while some Clerks in Counting Houses in Lexington, receive $1200—and many Clerks in our State Banks receive more!!!

TOWN AND COUNTY MEETING.

A number of the citizens of this town and county, met at the Court-House pursuant to public notice, on Saturday, to take into consideration the propriety of petitioning the present Legislature in favor of Independent Banks, when JOHN BRADFORD, Esq. was appointed Chairman, and THOMAS T. CRITTENDEN, Esq. Secretary.

A committee was appointed to draft a petition on the subject which occasioned the meeting, who soon after reported one, which was unanimously agreed to, and will we understand, be handed among the citizens generally for their signature.

Kentucky Legislature.

FRANKFORT, December 8.

On Monday last, according to law, the members of the Legislature convened in the capitol. A quorum being formed, the house proceeded to the choice of a Speaker—when it appeared that JOHN J. CRITTENDEN, Esq. had a majority of the votes for that office.

ROBERT S. TOWN, Esq. was re-elected Clerk unanimously—and Col. RICHARD TAYLOR and Mr. ROGER DEWEY, Sergeant-at-Arms and Door-keeper.

Mr. JAMES STONEBERRY, was unanimously re-elected clerk of the Committees of propositions and grievances, &c.—and Mr. JACOB P. SWIGART was elected clerk to the committees of claims, &c.

The various standing committees were appointed. The Senate re-elected their former sergeant-at-arms and door-keeper, and Ephraim Ewing, Esq. their committee clerk. The houses being organized, they appointed a joint committee to wait on the governor, and inform him that the general assembly were now ready to receive any communication that he might wish to make. The said committee having discharged its duty, informed the houses that his excellency would by his secretary, make his communication to-morrow, at 12 o'clock.

SENATE.

TUESDAY, December 5th, 1815.

Mr. OWENS, asked and obtained leave to bring in a bill to amend the act appropriating the Vacant Lands of this state, and a bill to amend the act entitled "an act to amend the several acts, authorizing a change of venue in civil cases."

The senate received a message in writing from the governor by secretary HARDIN, which was read as follows:

Gentlemen of the Senate,

And of the House of Representatives,

WE meet on the present occasion under auspices much more favorable to our common country, than at any former period. The blessings of peace are again restored to our land, and the abundant productions of our fields, furnish to every part of the state, all the necessities and many of the comforts of life: and demand from us our most grateful acknowledgments to Him from whom we receive so many blessings.

On former occasions it has been my duty to point out to you the dangers which overhung our country, from a war with one of the most powerful nations of Europe, brought on us by his cupidity, envy and ambition, and which, in its progress, threatened the subversion of our national institutions, and the prostration of our independence.

Under a long sunshine of peace we had forgotten much of the art of war:—Most of those, who in the former war, had stood the battle's brunt, and led us to victory, were in the silent tomb. Of those who remained, age had generally unnerved the vigor of early life: The generation which had sprung up in the meantime, had betaken themselves to the pursuits of civil life. The nature of our government, whose end and object is the general happiness of the whole of the community, rendered us averse to war, and solicitous to avoid, by any honorable means, an appeal to arms. Our forbearance was considered by the enemies of our institutions, as the result of weakness in the government, and the loss by its citizens of that high sense of national honor and love of country, which had once been our distinguishing characteristic.

When at last, that appeal was made, the eyes of the world were upon us. They considered it as the test of our national character, and the ordeal which was to prove, whether our government was capable of sustaining the shock of external war, aided by internal intrigue. That contest has terminated. The spirit of the nation which lay dormant, not extinguished, was no sooner roused into action, than it burst upon the heads of our enemies, and struck terror and consternation through their ranks. The haughty grounds taken by our adversary, during a period auspicious to his views, have been abandoned. Terms of peace proffered by our ministers at an early period of the negotiation, were finally accepted by our enemy; but not until the negotiation had been spun out to see the events of a pending campaign, and which terminated highly honorable to the American arms. No longer is our character obscured by our forbearance, and our love of peace. Our brilliant successes at sea, and our splendid victories by land, have placed us, on high ground among the nations of the earth.

To secure this standing, and to transmit it unimpaired to our posterity; to avail ourselves of the experience which the late war has given us, by providing against those errors in our policy which it has pointed out; and to cherish and improve the blessings of peace, after the privations of war, is the duty of the whole American family, but more especially of its several legislative bodies.

Toward the attainment of these ends: We should avail ourselves of a period of peace, to increase and improve our fortifications; our arsenals; our armies and every species of military equipment.

We should gradually increase our navy, as the increase of population, and the resources of the nation will permit.

We should re-organize the militia, and consequent thereon, revise the militia law; and as far as practicable, prevent in future those evasions and delays, in complying with executive requisitions for militia, which were so severely felt during the last war.

In short, we should recollect that to be always prepared to resist aggression, is the surest method of escaping it; and that in peace, is the safest and cheapest time to prepare for war.

We should extend the fostering care of government to our infant manufactures:

And we should improve and extend our internal navigation and our highways.

It is true, that to the national government it more properly belongs to provide for, or give impulse to some of the measures here suggested; but much may be done by the state legislature, by a frank and liberal co-operation on their part, on subjects connected therewith, or having an influence thereon.

I particularly recommend to your consideration, the propriety of establishing a State Magazine; and making provision by law, for procuring arms, ammunition, camp equipage, &c. sufficient to meet any public emergency.

The navigation of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, by Steam Boats, regularly sailing up and down those waters, afford to our country, a fair prospect of receiving many of our imports upon much cheaper terms than can be obtained by bringing them from the ports of the Eastern States. Should this succeed, it will also be highly advantageous in opening a direct barter of our export produce for our imported goods, thereby saving to the State the commissions and per centages of the intermediate agents and merchants employed in our present circuitous trade.

The experiments which have been made by the steam boats on these waters, give strong assurances of ultimate success.—There has, however, not been a sufficient number of them in operation to enable me to speak with entire confidence. It is believed by many, that a sufficient capital has not yet been employed in that line, to give the experiment a fair trial. I submit to the better information which the general assembly will possess in its collective capacity, the determination of the question, whether it should be left to individual enterprise to ascertain its utility, or whether the state should lend its aid in the undertaking.

Whilst we are reaping the fruits of an honorable peace, we should bear in mind, those brave men, who fell in the war, and whose valor, together with that of their compeers in arms, secured to us that peace. Many of them left wives and children who are dependent upon the bounty of their friends. I therefore, recommend that provision be made by law for the support of the widows, and for the education of the children of the militia of this state, who were killed or died in public service during the late war.

It will also be proper for the general assembly at their first session after the return of peace, to review the laws fixing the salaries of the civil list. Owing to the rapid increase of our population and to other causes, the duties of some of the officers have been much increased, and their salaries will be found inadequate to the services rendered.

No part of the seven thousand dollars appropriated by the act of the last session, "to provide camp equipage for the troops destined for Detroit," have been used. I was enabled through the Quarter-Master's Department of the general government, to supply what was requisite without any advance from the treasury of the state.

I have also been enabled since the adjournment of the general assembly, to pay from the treasury of the state, to the bank of Kentucky, the sum of twenty-seven thousand dollars of the money borrowed from it; and I have no doubt the debt may be further diminished in the course of the present session of the general assembly.

I assure you, gentlemen, that I shall derive great satisfaction, in co-operating with you in all your measures which may conduce to the welfare of my fellow-citizens.

In a few months the time for electing a citizen to succeed me in administering the government will arrive. I look forward to that period as the termination of my public course. I cannot take my leave of the general assembly, without expressing to them the grateful sense I shall always entertain for the favorable light in which my countrymen have viewed my public conduct, and offering to the Divine Disposer of all human affairs, my devout acknowledgments for his many favors extended to our country, and my fervent prayers that His protecting arm, may long preside over its destinies.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.

WILLIAM B. GILES, of Virginia, has resigned his seat in the Senate of the United States.

Gen. THOMAS H. CUSHING, late of the United States army, is appointed collector of the port of New-London, vice Gen. J. Huntington, resigned.

We understand that P. PENSLEY, Esq. minister from the court of Denmark to the United States, arrived in the ship London Trader, capt. Butler from Liverpool, and that it is his intention to proceed to Washington immediately.—Aurora.

The board of principal assessors have completed the task of equalizing the valuations returned by each principal assessor, of the real estate of Pennsylvania; and find that the direct tax will amount to 21 cents and 1 mill, for every hundred dollars of the valuation.

An odd antipathy!—The inquisition at Rome have caused some books on free masonry, found at the lodging of the late consul from Naples, to be publicly burnt. The holy priesthood have thus renewed their pious labors to demolish every thing secret, except their own craft!

"Two stars," we know, "hold not their motion in one sphere;" and it seems priestly mystery will not "brook a double reign." It would pry into all arcana, but conceal its own.

The new government of France, like that of Spain, looks on secret societies with distrust.

Boston Town Meeting.

On Monday last a Town Meeting was held in Boston, to decide on the Report of a Committee (previously appointed) recommending the incorporation of that town with city privileges.

On taking the vote the report of the committee was rejected by a majority of 31. Affirmative, 920 Negative, 951

A Mr. SIMON, Chillicothe, advertises "clock and watch-making, mending and repairing of every description, the yankee wooden ones, excepted, which can only be mended by carpenters and cleaned by fire!"—Aurora.

French Memoirs.—Carnot, says a Paris paper, has published a second memoir. It is printed at Rouen, and consists of a sheet and a half. We do not yet know of any person who has read it, except the Duke of Otranto, though several persons of consequence announce its existence. Its object is to point out the means of delivering France from the foreign armies.

There has also been issued from the press another memoir, much more extensive, and which consists of a strong appeal from the protestants on the occasion of the horrors which have been committed in the south. These horrors are detailed in it. "Ministers of Louis XVIII. will you be more cruel than the ministers of Louis XIV!!!" is one of the apostrophes of this memoir.

Columbian.

The Russian officers in France wear Cossets, "to make their waists as small as possible!" We mention this for the consolation of the American Fair who use these uncomfortable and unhealthy machines—as "misery loves company."—Trent. True American.

SHE WALKS IN BEAUTY.
SHE WALKS IN BEAUTY, like the night
Of cloudless climes and starry skies;
And all that's best of dark and bright
Meet in her aspect and her eyes;
Thus mellowed to that tender light
Which heaven to gaudy day denies.

One shade the more, one ray the less,
Had half impaired the nameless grace
Which waves in every raven tress,
Or softly lightens o'er her face;
Where thoughts serenely sweet express
How pure, how dear their dwelling place.

And on that cheek, and o'er that brow,
So soft, so calm, yet eloquent,
The smiles that win, the tints that glow,
But tell of days in goodness spent,
A mind at peace with all below,
A heart whose love is innocent!

A weekly paper called "the Bee," has been commenced at Paterson, New Jersey, by PERCY COSOVKA. From the vast increase of population and of business in that section of the state, we hope it may meet with liberal and efficient patronage. The following interesting and gratifying paragraph is from the first number:—True, True American.

A brief account of the Manufactures which are now in operation in this town.

From a calculation made by one of the most extensive manufacturers, it appears that there are 13 cotton spinning establishments, with about 17,000 spindles, employing between 60 and 70 men, 50 or 60 women, and 600 children in the spinning departments alone—also a large number employed in weaving—There are about 5 tons of yarn spun weekly, and a capital supposed to amount to 1,000,000 dollars engaged in the same.

The above with the addition of two or three other establishments, give employment and support to about two thousand inhabitants, a great number of them are poor, and depend on the prosperity of the establishments, for support—many families are entirely supported through the medium of their children's wages. How long they will be the support of numberless poor, depends on the government to decide.

From the recent statement of the Cotton manufacture in the vicinity of Providence, R. I. it appears that it is 50 per cent. greater than that of all Great Britain and Ireland in the year 1786. It also appears to be equal to one-third of the whole exports of the U. States in the first reported year of the present constitution, from September 1789 to September 1790.

The manufacture of flour and meal, as Merchant Mills, was formerly almost the exclusive business of the water mills within eight or ten miles of the city of Philadelphia. They are now very generally diverted from that employment to the more considerable business of manufacturing wool, cotton, iron, gunpowder, paper, wire, rolling, slitting, nail making, boring, grinding, polishing, stamping, &c. &c. The counties of Philadelphia, Delaware and Gloucester are acquiring a congregation of villages and hamlets by these means, which upon the whole imports from the other counties and states, a balance of flour and meal to feed their swarming hives of industrious manufacturers and mechanics. All the metropolitan towns in our counties and the lesser towns and villages, exhibit the same evidences of the progress of manufacturing industry and skill. It is the interest of the United States, to bring the manufacturing purchasers to the doors of the farmers. This is happily exhibited in the distilleries, tanneries, flaxseed oil mills, flour mills, saw mills, smith shops, wool hatters, shoemakers, makers of ploughs, barrows, and carriages, weavers, fullers, and other manufacturers who are scattered over the face of every county and almost every township.

From a London Paper.

A few days since two tradesmen discoursing over their evening libation, one of them remarked upon the unpleasantness of having occasion even to pass along Broker's row, Moorsfield or Monmouth street. Why said the other; "because," he replied, "you are plagued with either, do you want any furniture—or do you want to purchase any cloths, that it's a complete gamutlet to run, and fatiguing to answer all their questions." "I do not recollect having been so plagued," said the other—"and I think I might venture to wager that I would pass along Monmouth street any hour in the day, without being once interrupted." The consequence of this reply was the wager of a rump and a dozen—and on Thursday the 23d inst. it was decided.—The gentleman who undertook the task, accompanied by umpires, proceeded to Monmouth street, when taking out an ink-horn, he fastened it to his button hole; then with a large account book in his hand he proceeded on at a slow rate, and completely passed down the street, and back on the opposite side without being once accosted; the shopkeepers regularly retreating as he advanced, under the impression of his being a collector of taxes.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO FARMERS
THE subscribers are desirous of extending their flock of sheep to a greater number than can be kept on their own farms—and propose to put out a part of their flocks on shares, on the following highly advantageous terms, viz: to furnish one full blooded Merino Buck of the best quality, and a number of Common Ewes—not less than 50, nor more than 100 in a flock. The wool of said flock and their increase, must be equally divided annually—as also the weathers that may come of said flock, if performed by either party: the remainder of the increase, together with the original stock, to be retained five years; at the expiration of which term, all the remaining original stock must be returned to the subscribers. Also, so many of the lowest grade of increase, as will make good the number of the original stock. The residue of said flock to be equally divided between the parties. By the foregoing, it may be seen, that the keeper of the sheep will be amply compensated for the expenses of said flock by the annual supply of wool—and that the increase of the flock cannot fail to produce him a very large profit. Although the price of wool at present is unsettled, yet there can be no doubt but a regular demand must soon be experienced, not only for our own manufacturers, but for the European markets, and at such prices as will greatly encourage the increase of flocks in this country. The subscribers have incurred considerable trouble and expense in obtaining information from Europe on the subject of Merino sheep, and the state of the markets for wool; and from actual experiments made by breeders of Merino sheep in Europe and America, there is found abundant proof of the great advantage of crossing that breed with the coarser woolled sheep in all countries. Referring to actual sales made in London for twenty years last past, and for a few years last past in America, it may be found, that the comparative value of various descriptions of wool, corresponding with the qualities of the various grades of Merino wool of this country, are nearly as follows, viz: estimating full blooded Merino wool at any given price—one lb. of full blooded Merino wool may be estimated at the value of one and a half pounds of three quarter blood—two pounds of half blood—three pounds of one quarter blood, and four pounds of common wool, showing that Merino wool is four times as valuable as common wool, and that the intermediate grades are nearly in the same proportion valuable. No considerable sales of American wool having been made this year in any part of the United States, it cannot at present be ascertained at what prices sales will be effected, or what is the present value of wool. So soon as the value can be ascertained, the subscribers will purchase Merino wool, and mixed qualities from flocks of sheep that have originated or have been crossed with their Merino stock, and pay therefor as high prices as are paid for the same quality of wool in any part of America. It has been ascertained by many breeders of sheep, as also by the subscribers, that Merino sheep are more easily kept, and better suited to our climate than the common sheep of our country—also, produce much larger, as well as finer fleeces, and are equally good for mutton; therefore, there can remain no doubt of the ultimate advantage of breeding from the Merino stock. The objections heretofore made to breeding from this stock, on account of the great expense of purchasing need no longer exist, as by the foregoing proposition, every farmer can avail himself of the advantages offered of procuring the best breed of sheep in America, without any advance of money, and on terms that cannot fail to produce him ample profit for his expenditures, and do much good for the country.—PROPOSALS will be received until 5000 sheep are disposed of as above.

The subscribers will also farm or let on shares, a few of their best Merino Bucks for the season, for a part of their lambs, and upon terms more favorable to the breeder of sheep than last year. They will also sell a few Merino Bucks for wool, if application is made before the season is past for putting out the same. That no question may arise in regard to the quality of their sheep, the subscribers will warrant their Merino stock is not inferior to any, and that it is superior to most flocks in America. The subscribers are happy to state, for the information of those interested in breeding Merino sheep, from their own experience and observation, that the Merino sheep of America, and particularly in this section of the country, are far superior in size, quality and quantity of wool to those of Spain—and that the sheep immediately produced from those imported, are larger and more healthy, and in every respect more valuable than the stock from which they sprang. Persons living at a distance, and unknown to the subscribers, must accompany their applications for sheep with a reference for a knowledge of their character and responsibility.
